Intruder Given Boot

Examining the seven-pound Iron "health shoe" that proved unhealthy for a prowler early Tuesday are Brian Johnson and his wife, the former Jean Spedding, who was Victoria's daffodil queen in 1954. Brian threw the shoe through a window at a man who was attempting to break into his home at 3055 Millgrove, hitting him on the forehead. Where Did They Get the Guns?

Ferocity of Anti-Reds Astounds Observers

Hungarian Rebels Fight Against Combined Armies

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

VIENNA (AP)—The Hungarians' stunning armed revolt against their Communist masters baffles Western diplomatic observers in Austria.

It has dealt the Russians their biggest reverse since Soviet imperialism was launched under Stalin during the Second World War.

It was a much bigger blow to the Kremlin than last weekend's bloodless revolution in Poland.

It was the first time since the 1953 East German revolt that Russian guns were turned on a people of the Soviet satellite bloc.

Observers were betting Wednesday night the Hungarian uprising would speed the overthrow of Nikita S. Khrushchev as Soviet Communist party boss in Moscow.

Khrushchev looked bad in the Poland affair—but that was bloodless.

WEAPONS MYSTERY

What baffled observers here was the source of the rebels' weapons.

Another was how a full-fledged revolt, withstanding hundreds of thousands of the combined Russian and Hungarian armies for more than 24 hours, could explode from what appeared a peaceful demonstration of students.

The lid blew off when the demonstrators headed for the big Budapest Stalin monument to tear it down and spit upon it. Abruptly there developed a march on the parliament building to shout for the return as premier of once-purged Imre Nagy.

It could have been that the excited demonstrators just got out of hand.

But that does not explain where the guns were from. Nor how the rebels could organize the seizure of factories, public buildings and apartment houses. Nor how they could establish nests of resistance in sections where they could hold out against assaults by Russian tanks, jet planes, machine-guns, grenades and shells.

For days observers in Vienna wondered what—the Kremlin would do to slow down the Hungarian rush toward "independent socialism" in Poland's wake.

TOO LATE—TOO LITTLE

But no one here expected a shooting rebellion.

When the Hungarian Communist party bosses—who have been trying to play along with demands for more freedom—found themselves confronted with angry mobs they made popular, scholarly Nagy the new premier.

But it was too late and too little—the rebels wanted to kick the Russians out and to boot out the homegrown Communist rulers too.

The Budapest Communist party and the city council reported that the resistance of the "counter-revolutionaries" is almost broken. Radio Budapest announced.

WARSAW (UP)—Street fighting erupted in Warsaw last night during a demonstration in support of the rioting Hungarians and a mob of thousands tried to stage a march on the Russian embassy. Security police finally dispersed the demonstrators.

Juba Elected

Winnipeg Changes Mayors

WINNIPEG (CP)—Stephen Juba, 42-year-old businessman, early today was elected mayor of Winnipeg, succeeding George Sharpe who had held the post for two years.

Mr. Juba, an Independent member of the Manitoba legislature for Winnipeg Centre, took an early lead in the count and was never headed. Final returns from 410 polls gave Mr. Juba 45,955 votes to 43,727 for Mayor Sharpe.

Mr. Juba, Winnipeg-born son of Ukrainian parents, is a wholesale hardware distributor. He was defeated in two previous attempts to become mayor. He was elected to the legislature in 1953.

A $3,000,000 by-law to cover construction of new schools received majority of 60 per cent of the ratepayers.

Results of a liquor referendum were not immediately announced.

NEW YORK (UP)—The captain of the liner Stockholm collapsed yesterday shortly after admitting that his third mate apparently erased vital evidence relating to the collision between the Swedish ship and the Andrea Doria off Nantucket last July 25.

Capt. Gunnar Nordenson, 63, slumped forward in the witness stand in a near faint after five hours of cross examination by Eugene Underwood, attorney for the Italian Line, owner of the Doria. He later entered a hospital for examination.

COURSE ERASED

Underwood drew the admission from the veteran captain that his third mate, Ernst Carstens-Johannsen, 26, must have erased the plotting of the Andrea Doria's course from the Stockholm's radar plotting board following the collision. The crash claimed 50 lives, sank the Doria and resulted in damage suits totalling more than $40,000,000.

Preservation of the plotting would have been an important factor in confirming the third mate's story of events leading up to the sea tragedy.

Nordenson's collapse came after Underwood asked him to work out a simple navigation problem and the captain came up with the wrong answer.

Led from the stand, the captain partially revived when seated before an open window and given spirits of ammonia.

Nordenson had testified during his three days on the stand that he had "full confidence" in his third mate, who was on the bridge in command of the Stockholm before the collision, while the captain was in his cabin below.

However, Nordenson testified yesterday that he never saw the red wax pencil plotting on the celluloid surface of the Stockholm's plotting board which Carstens-Johannsen told him had been made.

"Who did away with the plot?" asked Underwood.

"It must have been the third mate himself," Nordenson replied.

Arab Countries To Unite Armies

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters)—Jordan Wednesday night announced the establishment of a unified command for the armies of Egypt, Jordan and Syria to operate in case of hostilities against Israel.

The announcement followed within a few hours a statement by King Hussein that Jordan may ask for revision of its 1948 mutual defence treaty with Britain.

In the first press conference given by a Jordanian sovereign, Hussein said the outcome of the Arab world's past alliance with the West "was the division of Arab countries."

He spoke on the eve of the first session of a new parliament elected Sunday. The majority of its 40 members are opposed to the Anglo-Jordan treaty which provides for an annual British subsidy, military supplies and direct aid in the event of hostilities.

Royal Picture Ban Irks Photographers

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Princess Margaret opened the £1,000,000 Royal Technical College Wednesday, East Africa's first big-scale venture into inter-racial education.

Money for the college was from the United States, Britain, India and Germany as well as East Africa.

Before flying here Margaret encountered the first "incident" of her five-week tour of East Africa.

Photographers, refused permission to shoot pictures as she left a hunting lodge, piled their cameras up in a heap where she could see them. They managed to get pictures, however, as Margaret travelled through game country.

Dutch Red Demands Royal Explanation

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—A Dutch government declaration on the "difficulties" in the Royal Dutch house was demanded Wednesday night by Paul de Groot, Communist member of the Second Chamber (lower house).

"If this is a public matter it should be dealt with publicly," he said, adding, "Whatever one may think of the structure of the state the state's duty is to compel respect for the head of the state."

Five parties in the lower house called on the government to take the "necessary measures to keep the (Dutch) monarchy unblemished."

The statement, read by Liberal opposition leader P. Oud, said recent stories about the Dutch Royal family affair in the Dutch, and foreign press had aroused serious concern.

Queen Juliana has been criticized for association with faith-healer Greet Hofmans. It is alleged to have caused a rift with her husband, Prince Bernhard, now visiting the United States.

Eisenhower Challenged

Scientists Back Immediate Ban On Atom Tests

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Federation of American Scientists called last night for an international agreement to ban H-bomb testing without waiting for a "complete" inspection system.

Although it did not mention Adlai E. Stevenson, the federation's statement amounted to at least a partial endorsement of the Democratic presidential candidate's H-bomb proposals.

At the same time, the federation—which represents 2,100 scientists and engineers of all fields—challenged parts of the argument President Eisenhower advanced for continuing the tests until a foolproof inspection system can be arranged.

NOW AN ISSUE

The group, which first advocated an H-bomb ban last year, said it was issuing the new statement because the question had become an issue in the presidential campaign.

The federation disputed Mr. Eisenhower's contention that the United States might fall behind Russia in nuclear development if it stopped testing without an inspection system to make certain the Soviets followed suit.

It said the ban on tests "would not preclude the continuance of the research and development involved with large nuclear weapons short of testing."

ATOMIC FALL-OUT

The federation also said that "world-wide concern over radioactive fall-out would be minimized by the knowledge that there would be further increases in current levels of radioactivity from large nuclear tests."

Mr. Eisenhower said present testing rates are not a hazard to human health. But the federation said scientists hold conflicting views on this "because definitive information is not yet available to completely evaluate the possible hazards."

PREMIER BENNETT

Opens Feb. 7

Session Timed To Ease Task Of Opposition

Next session of the provincial legislature will open at 3 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 7, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said yesterday.

And he was quick to note, everything will be done to make the job of the 13-man opposition easier.

Opening of the legislature usually takes place on Tuesdays but has been switched to a Thursday in order that the first two Socreds speakers can give their addresses on a Friday—leaving the weekend for the opposition members to "bone up" on the matters they wish to discuss.

Premier Bennett said he hoped to bring down the budget on Friday, Feb. 22, a day planned also to give the opposition a weekend breathing space to prepare criticism.

"There is, of course, a much smaller opposition and the government wants to co-operate in every way possible," said the premier.

It will be the first session since the Socreds were returned to power last month.

T-33 Overtakes Cessna

Seven Die, Homes Wrecked As Jet Hits Private Plane

MIDLAND, Tex. (UP)—An air force jet plane sliced into a private plane high over a residential section of Midland yesterday, killing seven persons, burning one home and damaging four others and an automobile.

The victims were W. R. Clements of Bowie, Tex., who was in the private plane, a Cessna 170, with another man, two women and a child about two years old, and the two air force men in the T-33 jet trainer. Chunks of aircraft and bodies rained down over a three-block area. The body of one woman crashed through the roof of a home and landed in a bathtub. The child, a girl was reported to have fallen on her head in a flower bed.

The biggest part of the jet—some parts were ahead before it reached the earth—hit an automobile parked in a driveway.

CAUGHT FIRE

It crashed in the hood and windshield of the automobile and slid into the side of the house, which caught fire and burned.

Miraculously, no one on the ground was killed or injured.

Witnesses said both planes were flying east and that the jet overtook the private plane and crashed into it.

AIRMAN EJECTED

A truck driver said one of the two men in the jet—trainer jets are usually occupied by a student and a pilot-instructor—managed to eject himself. The parachute streamed out, but didn't open.

The engine and propeller of the private plane crashed into the roof of another house. The rest of the plane hit two other homes.

Who Went There?

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new lightweight radar set which can detect a single soldier half a mile away was announced by the United States army Wednesday. The portable device was designed to give the army localized battle-area surveillance despite battle smoke, fog or darkness.

Instead of the usual radarscope, which produces visual signals on a luminous screen, a moving object produces sounds of a distinctive character in headphones.

Maj.-Gen. J. D. O'Connell, chief signals officer, said the set can show the difference between fixed and moving targets ranges up to three miles.

Medlar Best Over-Ripe

GRAND JELLY

The medlar makes a grand jelly, though, with a most distinctive flavor, and for this purpose, the variety Nottingham is the best. Unlike the mulberry it demands good soil and generous manuring, and it makes a most unique and attractive tree with distinctive crooked limbs.

Tastes have changed considerably since Parkinson's day, but I think most people will agree that the common apple-shaped quince makes the best of all jellies.

They aren't sloppy dressers, a survey of the clothing preferences of Victoria business men has found, but they can be called "casual." Dick Girard sports the garb—sports jacket and slacks—that the majority wear.

But the formal dresser still catches admiring glances. Ivy E. Smith, 1732 Emerson, is properly impressed by the appearance of W. J. Fleming, 1076 San Marino Crescent, as he strolls by.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Vancouver Is Plain Sloppy

Casual-Clothed Victorians Seem to Get Away with It

Victoria businessmen, notably informal dressers, get away with being called more "casual" than businessmen elsewhere.

But in Vancouver, a riled fashion editor told mainland businessmen that no one in Canada could hold a candle to them—for sloppiness.

Victorians, while escaping any sharp-tongued rebukes, are told that no one can hold a candle to them—for casualness.

All of which is pretty definite proof that West Coast businessmen, many of them wearing sports jackets and slacks to the office every day, would look out of place in the concrete canyons of Toronto's Bay Street and Montreal's St. James Street.

In those distant climes, the average businessman is likely to look like an advertising executive on New York's Madison Avenue—or try to, anyway—in a "sincere" grey flannel suit.

To jump back to Vancouver, even the man who wears a suit draws a cutting description as the "man in the rumpled grey flannel suit."

Scuffed shoes, wilted shirts, shabby raincoats and outdated hairdos are other things that the West Coast man-about-town falls into, according to our critics.

Victoria sidestepped several issues neatly. For instance, very few people here wear grey flannel suits, pressed or rumpled. And shoes may go scuffed sometimes because there are not enough shoe-shine stands.

And a smart sports jacket and slacks, while informal or casual if you wish, fit our way of life.

Vast improvement in recent years was cited by the manager of a leading Victoria clothing shop, who admitted in the same breath that "we might be a little bit on the sloppy side."

"We have improved a lot over the last few years," he claimed. "There are not so many old tweeds around and, I'll say this in our defence, the clothes worn here are of better quality than in Vancouver. It's a cheap city."

Another expert mildly accused men here of wearing accessories, such as socks and ties, that just don't go with their basic outfit.

Then came a conflicting view:

"Victoria business men aren't the smartest dressers in the country by any means—for the majority casual wear is the ticket. And Vancouver business men are generally better dressed than those here!"

An honest reply came from a businessman after he had been promised anonymity. "I'm a man in a rumpled suit," he said, "because it's comfortable. And my hair has to lie heavy on my head at current prices."

Haircuts got another mention from a man who said, "The way hair was cut 40 years ago still appeals to me. It's neat. I certainly wouldn't be seen with one of those Hollywood or TV ducktail haircuts."

A bartender who serves many after-hours business men thinks "many of them are very sloppy." "If they'd just get their shoes shined and their trousers pressed, it would make all the difference in the world," the bartender concluded.

Summing up for Vancouver, the fashion expert said: "The stevedores on Vancouver's dock present a better appearance than some of you. They, at least, are properly dressed for their work."

All of which should convince Victorians that they are lucky to be living in this tolerant climate.

Here we men come out casual, not sloppy; conservative, not poorly dressed; not smart, perhaps, but certainly comfortable.

Big Success Of Old Film Misleading

By JOHN CROSBY

In Los Angeles, a TV station ran a 12-year-old feature film, "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," the other night and captured twice as big an audience as the three network stations out there put together and a larger audience than all six competing stations combined. That sort of thing, of course, is going to cause talk.

This is the year when feature films on television are going to be better than ever. At least 200 of the best films Hollywood ever made are going to be doing the rounds of television stations and their impact will be closely watched and, if past experience is any guide, wildly misinterpreted.

For instance, that Los Angeles block-buster sounds significant—until you consider some of the special circumstances.

In the first place, Los Angeles is a lot more movie-conscious than most cities. Even more important is the tremendous plugging the film got, including $40,000 worth of advertising plus the equivalent of $60,000 worth of free advertising on KTTV. Few pictures have ever had that much ballyhoo spread around a single city. Still another is the fact that it was a pretty good picture.

When you are talking about a flickle and increasingly discriminating public, it seems to me that any generalizations about movies on TV are going to be awfully misleading.

I think it would be very unwise, for instance, to say that new movies on TV will outdraw Kraft's live drama. Or that Kraft's live TV will outdraw old movies. These things are going to be determined on their individual merits.

"The Wizard of Oz" which CBS will do on Nov. 3, will, I predict, be spectacularly successful because it was a spectacularly successful movie, because the story is timeless and because CBS will promote the daylight out of it.

For a while last summer I had feared that my own tastes were getting too exacting, that television couldn't be as tired and dull as it seemed to me. But now it seems to be unanimous.

The panel of 31 newspaper TV critics, which is the nominating body for the Sylvania Awards, has come up with a quarterly analysis of TV which universally belabored last summer's offerings.

Some of the comments: "This summer has been one of the poorest on television in the past five years due to the majority of programs economizing and showing repeats. TV is going backwards instead of forward." "This has been such a dreary summer. It may have been the worst summer in TV's short history. No experimentation, little originality. Take it away." "Summer has been so deadly and repetitious that I can't make nominations in numerous categories."

Things were tough all over. I only hope all those TV critics were as outspoken in their columns as they were in their reports to Sylvania. It might just help prevent having another summer like that.

City Loggers Lose Fight For $500,000 Damages

The provincial cabinet yesterday denied a petition from two Victoria logging operators who claimed up to $500,000 damages from the provincial government for alleged loss of logging rights.

The petition of James R. Gillespie, 3821 Epsom, and Charles F. DeLaure, 2320 Trent, claimed the damages alleging they had not been allowed to cut the 30 per cent of timber on crown land which forms the forest management licence held by B.C. Forest Products Ltd. at Port Renfrew.

Under the system, private operators must be given the right to cut 30 per cent of the timber in the licence area.

In the petition the loggers asked that the crown grant them the right to cut 30 per cent of the timber on crown lands or alternatively pay damages "not to exceed $500,000."

Cabinet rejected the application after Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the petition "discloses no cause of action against the government."

The cabinet approved revised traffic regulations affecting highways in unorganized territories and on arterial roads throughout the province.

The new regulations do not apply in areas where there are not less than $100, and the third local governments with their not less than $200. Previously the law required a fine not exceeding $500 and many offenders were only punished by a $10 stiffer penalties for trucks with fine.

The Mackenzie River system in northwest Canada drains an area of not less than $30, the second of $200, the square miles.

GREAT EXPANSION NOTED ON 45th ANNIVERSARY

The past forty-five years have seen many changes in Victoria and The Standard Furniture Company has grown and expanded with the city it serves. Throughout its history the big store has been owned and operated by the Dennys of Victoria. Founded by the late Mr. Denny, senior, it had its beginning on Pandora Avenue, the doors being opened in 1911. Later it moved to the 700 Block, Yates Street, where now a modern, five-storey store is operated, employing a staff of 125 and boasting 30,000 square feet of floor and display space.

With the steadily growing volume of business even this proved increasingly inadequate and recently the Standard Stock Depot was opened, giving a further 30,000 square feet of storage space.

These facilities enable The Standard to specialize in the import field, offering, in addition to top quality Canadian-made goods, furniture, draperies and rugs from all parts of the world. Shipments from the U.K. and foreign countries arrive daily at the Standard Stock Depot and the company is the largest Canadian importer of Sanderson's prints from England. Recent arrivals include new, modern furniture from Denmark and new Counterpoint furniture. In addition, the size of the Standard operation allows them to have much furniture made exclusively for them, to their own designs and specifications.

During the Standard's 45th Anniversary celebrations, buyers and management have made special efforts to bring an exceptionally large and varied display of modern furnishings to the big Yates Street store.

A Decision Would Help

DECISION by the B.C. government on the future of the legislative buildings may move closer as a result of the selection by the Capital Improvement District Commission this week of the alternative or "B" plan of development. This is based on a southward extension of the present holdings from both the main block and the adjoining one to the east, on which stands the Douglas Building. There are good points in both plans, but the difference in acquisition values is marked. The southward extension of the existing buildings, emerging at Beacon Hill Park at one corner, is described as being the less costly, as it would also be the more utilitarian. The commission's move should pave the way for governmental review and an early decision.

The other plan, that extending the government's holdings along Belleville Street, while the more costly and in the light of existing structures perhaps more difficult, would have lent itself well to an ornamental frontage incorporated with the main entry to the city by water. The property values are higher, however, and there are certainly limits to the degree of expansion which would be possible west or east of the present grounds. Of the two proposals, probably the southward development might prove the more practical from the standpoint of needed office accommodation, the least interference with traffic lanes, and perhaps also the least upset to present development in the area.

Either plan, with a suggested $10,000,000 behind it, could be made to serve the needs of the seat of provincial government. There are good reasons, however, why the administration should arrive soon at its final decision in the matter. All property owners in the area concerned will remain unsettled until they learn what the future of the neighborhood is going to be. Likewise, the City itself is stopped from planning any integrated development until the final choice has been made. So action on the issue would be helpful all around. Both plans as presented have features to commend them, but they cannot well be combined. It must be one or the other on this showing, or some entirely new conception.

This Calls for Law

MORE fortunate than one of his two companions, who died, a young man is recovering in Vancouver from the effects of exposure and starvation after spending six days alone and lost on Mount Seymour. He has been the object of much sympathy—and understandably so because he suffered greatly both in body and in mind. At the risk of appearing callous and unfeeling, however, it should be said—and is being said privately by many people—that nothing can condone the foolhardiness that got him into a predicament which nearly cost him his life and could very easily have brought death to some of those who spent days searching for him.

This young man and his companions did almost everything that hunters, hikers and climbers have been warned over and over again not to do. They began a hike which turned into a perilous climb for which they were neither clad nor equipped. The one who miraculously survived a six-day vigil in a cave says he owes his life to memory of Boy Scout training, but in the light of all the circumstances it is unlikely that the Scout movement will draw much pride from that. The Scouts' motto is "Be Prepared" which, translated into the actions of this climber, meant going up a bleak and unfamiliar mountain inadequately clothed, without food of any kind, without compass, flashlight, hatchet, knife, ropes, whistle or even matches—without in fact a single item of the equipment Scouts are trained to carry, and use.

Through severe suffering he has undoubtedly learned a belated lesson; but many others, including his anguished wife, also have had to suffer unnecessarily. And not to be overlooked are search costs estimated at more than $13,000, most of which will have to be borne by the taxpayers.

This incident, coming on top of numerous other costly and dangerous searches for lost hunters in various parts of the province, creates a demand for laws to restrain foolish ventures into the wilds. Some of the American states have them; and only recently two inexperienced mountaineers were fined in Washington for climbing above a certain level on Mount Rainier at a forbidden time of year. The purpose of the fines, as was stated by the judge, was not to punish but to warn.

While no reasonable person would wish to restrict unnecessarily the liberty of people to enjoy the outdoors, there is much substance to proposals that regulations be established in British Columbia. If grown men cannot go hunting or hiking without losing themselves, others should not be put in danger and the country to expense rescuing them.

Of Its Warp and Woof

WHEN Archdeacon A. E. deL. Nunns gives up his parish duties next January a particular flavor will be lost to the life of Oak Bay. As a municipality Oak Bay has a panache of its own, an atmosphere compounded in large measure by its leading figures and their impact on the community over a long period of years. The rector of St. Mary's is one such, a personality grown part of the municipality's warp and woof. He is of the ilk of former municipal clerk R. F. Blandy, former police chief Hugh Reston and present municipal engineer Arthur Musgrave—dissimilar in person and position all, but alike in their intimate relationship with Oak Bay.

Thirty-three years is a long time to spend ministering to others, no matter the calling. It represents a period equal to half many a man's total life-span. When the vocation invites the guidance and counselling of others, as it does exclusively with men of the cloth, it means that an immense influence has been brought into play. Over the past three decades then the rector of St. Mary's has been an important factor in the lives of many people, each of whom to some degree carries with him for all time the imprint of this staunch, devoted clergyman.

In addition Archdeacon Nunns has been what is called, although in this instance in its best sense, a character. He is Irish and filled with the wit and bounce of his race harnessed to the spiritual needs of his mission. He has been so rich of individuality that his name is a household one in homes outside the orbit of his own communion. That in itself is testimony to the place he holds in the affection and in the daily life of Oak Bay. It is something also, one feels sure, that brings its own rewards as this well-known rector draws to the end of his ministry. His name is assured of an honored niche in the records of his parish, and he will take with him into retirement the genuine good wishes of all the people of the municipality.

Soviet Alliance Breaking

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Correspondent

POLAND'S revolt against Russian domination has given President Tito of Yugoslavia, a partner in the movement toward independent communism.

Wladislaw Gomulka, new Polish Communist leader, is the partner.

It will be surprising if they do not get together soon to discuss strategy.

It will be surprising also if the independence movement—Titoism—does not spread to Communist-Hungary within a few weeks.

The developments in Poland have further increased Tito's prestige as the first man who ever successfully defied Soviet domination.

To Gomulka, Tito will have a valuable ally. If they work together, the whole trend of world Communist philosophy is due for a change.

But it is important to remember that both Tito and Gomulka are still hard-core Communists.

They are both willing to co-operate with Russia on their own terms.

Those terms are that Tito and Gomulka must be free to run Communist governments on their own lines.

Neither Tito nor Gomulka wants any interference from the United States or any other Western power.

It is likely that, in the United Nations, Yugoslavia and Poland will continue to vote generally as the Russians do on issues which arise between West and East.

The big development from the Western viewpoint is that, with the Polish rebellion, the "Soviet bloc" of countries is breaking up.

Any threat of Russian aggression against the West has become increasingly remote.

It has always been questionable whether Russia could depend on the armies of its satellites to fight, with any spirit, an enemy which the Kremlin selected.

Yugoslavia has had its own independent army since Tito broke with the Kremlin in 1948. Now Poland undoubtedly will have its own independent army.

Whether Russia will have much confidence now in its Warsaw military alliance seems doubtful.

This alliance was formed in Warsaw last Jan. 28 in answer to the Allied North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It provided for unification of the armed forces of Russia, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Bulgaria and Albania.

Poland has sort of pulled the rug from under the entire alliance.

As regards Communist philosophy, Tito announced soon after his break with Russia that he remained a 100 per cent Marxist.

Gomulka, likewise, remains a dedicated Communist.

Tito has disclosed that his break with Russia really started during the final stage of the Second World War when he started to resent Josef Stalin's dictatorial methods.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IT is always interesting to see ourselves as others see us, as Robert Burns was wont to advise—or our country. As per example the piece written in the New Statesman and Nation by R. H. S. Crossman, one of the socialist stars of the British Labor Party. Western Canada, he says, is a savage country.

Now this isn't at all what he said when sitting in our office two months ago. Perhaps the sun was shining. I forget—but he was full of nice sentiments. Indeed his only complaint was that he couldn't buy a drink of liquor on a Sunday. I sought to offset this by saying that not too long ago when driving on a Sunday evening from Oxford to London I couldn't find a place to buy a drink of tea—but I fear he did not think the analogy relevant. Doubtless tea and whisky don't mix.

But he is back home telling his countrymen about Western Canada—and that, naturally, is a different story.

It was the "savagery" of our land that most impressed him. This will surprise you even if it doesn't his readers, since he was here in August when the Prairie wheat fields are golden, the foothills full of charm and the rivers and valleys of B.C. are at their most attractive.

Some old-timer, I'm afraid, was spinning him yarns—about the winter.

For instance he writes that "when you motor across the Prairie you scarcely see a farmhouse." (He didn't motor, by the way, except on little side trips, but let that pass.) Now he's right when he describes wheat farming as an "extractive industry"—some Canadians have termed it "wheat mining"—but it will amaze farmers to learn theirs is not a way of life, especially if they've been at it all their working days.

Because the winter is so "savage," it follows in Mr. Crossman's mind that the "Prairie is not the kind of place where you build a home and settle down." I presume he must mean the countryside since he visited a few Prairie cities, and perhaps he is unaware of his exaggeration. Now, many farmers pack up and head for town in the winter months, true enough, but there are plenty of farm homes on the Prairie and some fine ones too as you know.

It is at least a slightly false picture to stress the rigors of a winter which he did not experience. Or it seems that way to this writer, who managed to live on the Prairie for years without knowing what Mr. Crossman discovered, to wit, that only a trapper could survive without steam heat. Nor is Vancouver likely to recognize itself as comparable only to Vladivostok.

One must make allowances for a gentleman more effete, shall we say, than a Western Canadian. Certainly it appears he never would himself survive a Prairie winter, even if countless Canadians take it every year in their stride and in comparative comfort.

No wonder, I suppose, he is naively surprised that "as many as five million people live there"—in Western Canada.

He has some interesting remarks to make about farming and industry, but his consuming impression is of the "savage" nature of our habitat. A pity that, for one who aims to be a Commonwealth statesman,

IF a crying need of the Tory party is to convince the voters that Conservatism is a resurgent, vibrant force, the Diefenbaker-Fleming fight for the leadership should help.

Without Donald Fleming's decision to oppose John Diefenbaker the convention likely would have fallen flat. It might have been about as inspiring as the Republicans rally in San Francisco—and at this stage in the Tories' political fortunes, that is something the party cannot afford.

But the sight and sound of these two men vying for the leadership in seven weeks of speechmaking in all provinces will not indicate party moribundity. And by using their conflict to publicize the Tory cause they will be doing the party a valuable pre-election service.

David Fulton and other prominent Tories will contribute, too. But without Fleming the contest would have been so clearly in the bag for Diefenbaker that one would not expect public interest or enthusiasm to be aroused.

Now it's different. Even Grits here in Ottawa are assessing the relative merits of Fleming and Diefenbaker with so much zest that people not knowing them would think they were Conservatives.

While both men are making "national appeals" for support, this does not alter the fact that they are essentially candidates of different sections of the country. By and large, Diefenbaker is the candidate of the have-nots: the West, the Maritimes, and a large part of rural Ontario. Fleming is the choice of urban Ontario, and by default perhaps, the choice of Quebec, which reportedly cannot stomach Diefenbaker on the ground of his allegedly unsympathetic attitude towards French Canada.

A GOOD deal of what is called a temper is nothing of the kind, but mere bile. Any number of women and men who are credited with getting into a temper are merely neurotically impatient and ought to take a dose of salts, or if they want to be modern, some of these new tranquilizing pills.

To be in a temper is a noble thing, and no ill-natured, chronically bilious, cranky and irritable person should be allowed to put on airs by pretending a temper. Steel is tempered when common iron and a few ingredients are converted by fire into something immensely stronger, more resilient, more durable and serviceable than those components. I have seen old Sir Winston Churchill in a temper, and it was as if a sudden devastating fire had welled up within him, converting a good, solid iron man into a glittering creature of steel. I have watched stags fighting, and seen one of them flare savagely into a temper and throw the other one to flight or its death in an instant.

The foreman of a busy electrical service shop at which I have done sundry small business, such as having electric irons repaired for my wife, is reputed by his staff to be a very hot-tempered man when aroused. It is a big jump from this to the assumption that the successful candidate will, in the next general election, increase Tory parliamentary seats in the areas in which his party strength lies. But this is the basis on which a lot of convention delegates will decide how to cast their votes.

Talk is that Diefenbaker's selection would add substantially to Tory seats in rural Ontario, especially western Ontario, and would spark moderate gains in the Maritimes, and would help the party to make a comeback in the West.

Talk also is that if the Tories want to make any headway in Quebec, they must elect Fleming. The old axiom that to attain power a party must get at least 30 Quebec seats may or may not be valid nowadays, but it is offered as a reason for choosing Fleming. But this argument seems to lose a bit of its force with the report that a couple of Quebec Tory MPs, whose own re-election could be at stake in the party's choice, are pro-Diefenbaker.

In my opinion, and I may be wrong, Diefenbaker has an edge in such weighing of the candidates on the basis of their supposed vote appeal at election time.

That is my conclusion after asking myself these questions:

Conceding that Diefenbaker cannot influence Quebec to vote Tory, is Fleming likely to add substantially to the Tories' four seats in Quebec? Against Louis St. Laurent? Against St. Laurent's ultimate successor?

What are the relative prospects of a Toronto lawyer and a man from a western farm province, albeit also a lawyer, to attract votes in the West, the Maritimes and rural Ontario?

If Diefenbaker is chosen, are Ontario Tories likely to do anything but continue to vote Tory?

If Fleming is chosen, are western Tories likely to do anything but continue to turn to other parties, notably Social Credit?

A GOOD deal of what is called a temper is nothing of the kind, but mere bile. Any number of women and men who are credited with getting into a temper are merely neurotically impatient and ought to take a dose of salts, or if they want to be modern, some of these new tranquilizing pills.

I was in the shop recently when he was demonstrating his temper. When I walked in, the girl at the switchboard in the front of the shop was extremely nervous and on the verge of tears. I asked to see the foreman. She whispered that he was in a terrible temper. As if to prove it, a workman in a smock came scurrying out from the shop with every expression of fright. Then I heard the voice of an angry man bellowing behind the partition. I decided to wait.

The next customer to enter was a small, elderly lady carrying a pack-sack and an umbrella. She stood with me a minute or two, and when the bellowing continued, she suddenly lifted the counter gate and walked in behind the partition.

There was an instant of silence. Then a bellow. Then a curious sound which I later learned was the sound of the old lady whacking the foreman on the head with her umbrella. She came back and out through the gate, the picture of rage.

The foreman followed and stood meekly behind the counter while the trembling old lady, unwrapping her package, which was a bed-warming pan, glared at the foreman, who was rubbing the side of his head.

"Any time you want to see what a temper is," stated the old lady acidly. "I can show you. Now, pay attention to this."

And she proceeded to explain what was wrong with her bed warmer.

What the foreman had wasn't temper at all. It was just that he needed a good kick in the pants. If anybody had the temper to give it to him,

Farm Income Lagging

By PETER BRUTON

ACCORDING to the experts, the present booming economy in B.C. will continue to improve during the next few months and 1956 will see a new record year for levels of production, employment, consumer expenditure, and capital investments.

It is indeed a rosy picture painted by the statisticians in the provincial department of trade and industry.

But while most sections of the economy are surging ahead, it is noteworthy that once again agriculture has been placed in the position of low man on the totem pole.

B.C. farmers during the first six months of the year earned an estimated $43,000,000 cash income, which is 3 per cent higher than the figure for the same period a year ago. The drawback, however, is that this increase has been unevenly spread among the various branches of the industry.

For example, the cash income from livestock and poultry sales showed a substantial 25 per cent increase, while the cash income from sales of fruit declined by 34 per cent.

Adverse weather conditions, both late last year and early this year, have been mainly responsible for the current problems in fruit and vegetable farming.

Dairy farmers had difficulty through poor pastures and drought in late spring, while sales of fluid milk in the first six months were 6 per cent greater than last year.

At the same time milk production was slightly below the 1955 figures and there has been a decline in the proportion of the milk supply used in the manufacture of dairy products.

A substantial increase in the proportion of the supply taken by fluid milk sales is due to the high level of employment, leading to increased consumption of fluid milk, and the decline in milk production resulting from the bad weather conditions.

The statisticians say the outlook for both beef and dairy cattle is promising. Increased beef prices and the new milk price scheme are likely to stimulate greater production.

Latest estimates show that there are about 376,000 head of cattle in the province, 2,000 more than a year ago, although the numbers of hogs and sheep have decreased.

Fruit production in the province is well below that of last year. Severe frosts last winter and rain and hail this summer resulted in substantial reductions in crops of berries, tree fruits, and vegetables.

Farm cash income from the sale of fruits during the first six months of the year was less than half of that for the same period a year ago.

This, of course, resulted in higher prices for nearly all fruits and vegetables, with the exception of apples.

Crops of beans and corn were also smaller, as a result of the drought, but prospects for later vegetables are more promising.

The improved economic condition of the province's poultry farmer is being maintained and egg production up until the end of June was some 6 per cent higher than a year ago. Egg prices were also above those of last year.

Commercial egg marketings have shown less seasonal decline than in recent years and the higher egg prices have brought about a 16 per cent increase in the number of chicks hatched at registered hatcheries.

But while the economy of B.C. farmers may not be too bright in this period when most other sections are surging ahead, another poor sister—fisheries—has fought its way out of the slump it was in last year.

Initial statistics up until the end of August show that a total of 488,000,000 pounds of fish were landed, compared with 246,000,000 pounds during the same period in 1955. The landed value came to $26,000,000 as against $19,000,000 a year ago.

Actually the salmon catch this year will probably be lower than those of 1955, but the loss is made up by the tremendous herring catch—353,000,000 pounds as against 118,000,000 pounds a year ago.

Export value of canned salmon shipped by B.C. processors came to more than $5,000,000 during the first seven months of the year, with the main foreign markets being the United Kingdom, the U.S., New Zealand, Belgium, Australia, South Africa and Italy.

Finally, it has been noted that the Fraser River fishing fleet has increased its size and efficiency to such an extent that present methods and regulations for conservation have become inadequate. Concern has also been expressed over the increase in size of U.S. and Canadian fishing fleets operating off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Regulation Needed

As an old-timer of 1897-98, will you allow me to point out a few basic facts regarding our young men who may want to explore unmarked trails of the northern wild lands and especially the mountains of B.C. and the Yukon.

First, I think laws should prohibit the climbing of our mountains after the end of September unless the party is properly equipped, with proper clothing and rations for at least two weeks and official approval granted. (It would not be unless the climbers were experienced.)

I remember a trip I made from Telegraph Creek in the Stikine to Teslin Lake, and thence to Surprise Lake, to over the White Pass to Skagway while the White Pass & Yukon Railway was being constructed during February.

I travelled a good deal in the north in those days and should be qualified to give a little advice to young men who like to explore and hunt the wild country.

Reading of reports last week of three young men lost on Mount Seymour (one of them died) convinces me of the need of regulation. Action should be taken to protect the inexperienced against foolhardiness.

Belittling Laymen

It is refreshing to read layman Roger Kemble's modest and humble opinion in a letter entitled "An Artist's Motive." This thoughtful and constructive reasoning, divorced from personal taste, expresses wisdom and reflects a degree of perfection only an artist could motivate.

Tony Emery, a director of the Art Gallery, writes articles "I Know What I Like," and seemingly possesses an inexhaustible supply of knowledge. I may have misconstrued his latest discourse, but this seems to me to be very belittling in outlook towards laymen.

Firewood for All

Much has been said recently about scarcity of firewood for Victoria and other centres on this Island. Here on the Pacific Coast, in the midst of the most lavish abundance of wood in the world, there is a shortage of firewood! Why, there is wood to burn all over the landscape.

With most of this region so cluttered with tree tops, windfalls and snags that it is all one great firetrap, our people are too busy watching television and ball games, or scorching the roads with their high-powered cars, to take time off so they might clear up some of the mess and, incidentally, supply themselves with all the wood they can use. There are plenty of people who need wood, and do not care to pay fancy prices for it, who could easily get permission from the owners to go and get some of it. In various ways Providence helps those that help themselves.

Most office workers and professional men are below par physically. A few hours once in a while with axe and saw in the woods would put new life into them.

When the dead wood, including limbs, is taken away there is little risk of fire, and when a heart-breaking job getting to it with equipment as it often has been, a stranger might fairly infer that we are a civilized people, but take a look at the woods! No race of savages in history ever made such a mess of their forests as we have done in this fair land of ours.

For topographic and economic reasons, most of this Island will be devoted to growing timber for a long time to come. While the region is littered with waste wood, people are planning to use more and more oil and gas for fuel. After a few generations, when the accumulations of whole geological periods in the earth have been exhausted, people will go to work in earnest to restore what is left of the forests. In some parts of this continent some good work has been done toward conservation of natural resources. A tremendous amount of constructive work is going on, but anyone who will take the trouble to get the facts must conclude that the so-called high standard of living on this continent is based largely on plunder, and there is still far more destruction than construction under way.

Poor Bus Service

It would be interesting to know if the Vancouver Island Coach Lines, who have the monopoly of transportation to Victoria from Jordan River, Sooke and Saseenos, do not consider the fares charged for the distances covered are exorbitant. Furthermore, on the return trip these buses generally arrive a fraction after schedule and stand till the driver arrives to change the plate showing its destination, thus leaving the transients bewildered until the last minute when the driver arrives.

Is it to be wondered at that those communities dependent on this public service avail themselves of any other transportation offered? It appears to me a poor policy from a shareholder's point of view, to antagonize a community by such discrimination. A very few years ago a second bus had to be requisitioned weekends to handle such traffic; but then the bus company catered to the public.

White Heather

Show Pace Fast

By BERT BINNEY

A first-paced performance by the White Heather Concert Group entertained an excellent house at the Royal Theatre last night.

Theatrical singing, Stanley Baxter's impersonation of "The Old Age Pensioner" was outstanding. It was a performance which most definitely swayed the large audience; it was not merely funny, but also stirred deeper feeling; it was finished in enviable detail and was thoroughly sustained.

Master of ceremonies was Jimmy Neil, a rapid-fire performer who, on occasion, was hard to follow. His singing was quite delightful and his imitation of another popular Scottish singer was certainly faithful and clever.

Gordon MacKenzie, a Scottish tenor formerly with the D'Oyly Carte Company, provided several of the old Scottish favorites as well as one of his own compositions. "I'd Love to Be in Scotland When It's Christmas Over There," Mr. MacKenzie has a rich, melodious voice and a very appealing mode of presentation.

Ivy Carey, the "Scottish queen of song" was the sole female performer. Her soprano voice is delightfully controlled and, while all her numbers were more than acceptable, she appeared at her best with two medleys and the well-known "My Ain Folk."

Will Starr provided excellent entertainment with his accordion, a button model rather than the more familiar keyboard type. He played medleys of marches, strathspeys and reels, including "The Dashing White Sergeant," "The Gay Gordons" and clever variations on the famous "Bluebells of Scotland."

Accompanist and solo pianist was Denis Woolford, an artist of no mean accomplishment.

There was reason for reflection that, while old songs are fine and durable, old jokes are neither and some portions of the performance were fairly liberally sprinkled.

Sponsored by the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society of Victoria, the show repeats tonight.

Public to Be Educated

Postal Confusion Rampant

The post office will launch a concerted two-week public education campaign Nov. 5 designed at avoiding delays in mail and grumbling over postage on the Saanich peninsula.

People in the area can be served by any one of several post offices, including Victoria, depending on what postal district they live in, but confusion is rampant, postmaster Robert Reid said yesterday.

Mail from Victoria business firms, for example, is sometimes sent to an address with a four-cent stamp, when a five-cent stamp is necessary because the addressee is in another postal district. The person receiving the mail then has to pay twice the deficiency.

Or mail may be a long time in delivery because it has to be handled by several different districts before it gets to the right person.

Reason for this, Mr. Reid said, is that people in the Royal Oak, Cordova Bay, Glen, Saanichton or Victoria districts do not designate their districts on addresses but list themselves as from Victoria.

For example, a person living on Lochside Drive, giving his address as Victoria, could be served by Victoria, Cordova Bay, Royal Oak, Saanichton or Sidney post offices.

"We'll get the letter there sooner or later, but there will be a delay," Mr. Reid said. "And if it is outside the Victoria area, probably not enough postage has been put on and that will be cause for more grumbling."

Government Offices Will Close Nov. 12

Provincial government offices will be closed on Monday, Nov. 12, for the observance of Remembrance Day.

The provincial museum will also be closed all that day.

HOW TO GET A JOB

I was out in the back yard, machine-gunning acorns in every direction, with my rotary mower, when this elderly Chinese came around. "Before... long time... I work here," he said. "No... I don't need gardener," I said. "I got this machine... easy to cut lawn... mulch up leaves... you see," so I pulled the cord, and shot the leaves out, but he wasn't impressed, all he said, "I work here before... long time... Captain Jones... you sabby Capt.?" "No... I no sabby Capt.?" I not need gardener... place not too big... I O.K. sorry... thank you. "You got fork?" "Yeah... in shed... you got trowel... I fix 'em... all velly nice." "No Jim... I NO need gardener... I fix O.K. good-bye," and I started shooting acorns again. When I looked around, he was down on his knees, and he say, "trowel not velly good... you get new one eh?" "You got shovel?" "I got him my shovel... 'hmmmm... you got file... shovel not velly sharp... I fix 'em. Before... Capt. Jones... long time." I came back with the file, & he squatted by the rockery & I kicked the motor again. Some mush shot out, as I went thru some tall toadstools, and the cat ran up a tree. Jim tapped me on the shoulder... "you bring tea eh? & bread... I come every week... Spring time come... all look velly nice." "Sure... I give tea... what time?" "Oh... no matter... lots a tea... lots a bread." "Sure... you no like eggs... bread... big pot." "O.K." I say, "I tell G.F., she fixem." "You ketchem shivers?" I hated to take these to him... he ran his finger down the edge while I hummed, "how am I fixed for blades?"... then he squatted by the rockery again, & I pulled the cord, & nearly brained him, as I hit a rock, & it went over his cap, and Fluffy high-tailed it up the tree again. Early the next morning I was in the Oak Bay Hardware, buying their best trowel, and the biggest Drown Betty they had.

Democrats Attack Special Interests

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Democrats shifted their line of campaign attack on the Eisenhower administration Wednesday to the twin issues of big business and special interests.

The question of President Eisenhower's "millionaire" cabinet is no new-comer to the campaign for the U.S. presidential election. But Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, pressed it with fresh vigor in New York.

Addressing a luncheon of business supporters, he pictured his friend of H-bomb as a "swindler of the small merchant and said the Republicans have done nothing to halt a 'march of bigness' threatening the extinction of small business. The Democrats rejected the idea of 'an America in which everyone is on the payroll of a few giant corporations.'

In Detroit, the big industrial centre which Stevenson carried by 163,000 votes in 1952, his vice-presidential running-mate, Estes Kefauver, picked up the big-business theme and urged election of said.

Democratic party "which realizes that national prosperity means prosperity evenly distributed among all the people and not just the giant corporations." Both presidential candidates also returned to the H-bomb issue. Eisenhower said it is "absolutely mandatory" that progress be made in solving the atomic issue. But, he added, in a "world of tension," the H-bomb is part of the strength the U.S. must have to deter any aggressor.

Stevenson said 270 nuclear scientists have supported his view of "the danger to us and to our children in continued H-bomb tests."

"Just because this administration has not made any progress toward safe disarmament or control of the hydrogen bomb, it does not mean it cannot be accomplished," he said.

Teamsters Union May Quit CLC

More than 30,000 Teamsters' Union men across Canada will decide soon whether to pull out of the Canadian Labor Congress over a jurisdictional dispute among Okanagan fruit workers.

Robert Milliken, business agent for South Vancouver Island Local 360 of the General Teamsters' Union, and Stuart McInnes, president, will attend a Teamsters' Joint Council meeting in Vancouver Friday to discuss the matter.

MEETINGS CALLED

Charles Gower, secretary-treasurer of the Vancouver Joint Council, said he had asked Dave Beck, Teamsters' International president, to call meetings of joint councils across Canada to decide on the withdrawal issue.

The teamsters' threat is the first major blow to unity of the merged labor congress since Canadian Congress of Labor and the Trades and Labor Congress joined into a 1,000,000-member organization last April.

Babies Being Fed Live Polio Virus

CLINTON, N.J. (AP)—Newborn infants are being fed live polio virus in their bottles at the state reformatory for women here to trace their hereditary resistance to the crippling disease.

The tests, first ever given children under six months of age, are being conducted on children of prisoners by the Lederle Laboratories, American Cyanamid Co.

None of the children has contracted the disease.

Some 34 mothers volunteered their children to be given the live virus, mixed in their formula from an eyedropper.

The studies are to determine the active antibody response of infants while still possessing immunity inherited from their mothers.

Many Canadian farmers are complaining of lower-than-average yields this year, but not the sugar-beet growers. Stores in City Hall Might Pay for Site

Manager's Proposal Strikes Little Fire

Neither strong support nor strong opposition greeted a suggestion yesterday that the city and Saanich should consider building a new municipal hall on the present city hall site, with revenue-producing stores on the ground floor.

Mayor Percy Scourrah said the idea had been put forward by City Manager C. C. Wyatt and City Assessor Alfred Joyce, and that he would ask planning groups to consider it.

The mayor said the idea would be to erect a building of six or seven storeys. The stores on the ground floor might yield rentals totalling $25,000 to $30,000 a year, to help pay for the building. Parking space would be provided on the site of the present fire hall — "We have to go ahead with the building of a new fire hall, in any event."

HARBOR SITE

At the same time, Mayor Scourrah made a suggestion of his own on the location of Victoria's new courthouse. He said he would like to see the province build it on the west side of Wharf between Fort and View, where it would beautify the Harbor, could have two storeys below street level for storage, and could be served by adequate parking facilities.

Both the city hall and courthouse suggestions are expected to be discussed next week by the Capital Region Planning Board, when it meets to discuss the relative advantages of Topaz Park and the Protestant Orphanage property as Victoria-Saanich municipal hall sites.

The board was asked to make the choice by the inter-municipal committee studying the possibility of building a joint Victoria-Saanich hall.

Brahm Weissman, planning director of the board, declined to comment on the new municipal hall proposal, but noted that his own recommendation had been that both the hall and the courthouse should be built in a civic centre in the area immediately west of Christ Church Cathedral. Ald. W. F. Pinfold, chairman of the joint hall committee, expressed concern about the possible cost of a new building on the present city hall site, especially in view of the fact that proceeds from the sale of the property would go toward construction of a new hall in any other location.

Reeve Arthur Ash of Saanich was dubious about the suggestion. He had felt all along, he said, that a new, joint hall should be "out Douglas way. I think you have to look ahead." Coun. Ronald Grant, a member of Ald. Pinfold's committee, be guided by the advice of experts on the location, "but first we should decide, in principle, whether both councils support the idea of a joint municipal hall."

One objection to a downtown site has been that a city hall downtown occupies valuable commercial property that might otherwise bring the city additional tax revenue.

Ald. Robert Macmillan, another committee member, agreed that ground-floor stores might remove this objection, but nevertheless that the modern trend was toward city halls away from the business centres.

The mayor's courthouse suggestion won immediate favor in one quarter.

Alan Baker, president of the Victoria Bar Association, said he personally thought the idea was excellent.

Mr. Baker recalled that the association had stated its preference: first, the present location; second, the provincial parking lot at Belleville and Government; and third, the cathedral site. The association hadn't listed the Wharf Street location, he said, but it had been suggested and favorably commented on.

Rules Put Man Out of Business

Lousy Thief Jailed

NANAIMO — Gordon James Cutler, 41, appeared wrapped in nothing but a blanket in police court today to face a charge of stealing clothes from a parked car.

He said he had burned his own clothes because he was "being eaten by lice." Cutler, who said he comes from Toronto, was sentenced to 30 days in Oakalla prison.

DUNCAN — A Duncan dairy owner says his business will go up for auction Saturday because government regulations are forcing him to sell.

Jack Young said an inspector ordered him to buy additional machinery and do black-topping to bring his dairy up to requirements for a Grade A licence. He said the improvements would have cost $3,000. He asked for two months to do the work and was refused, Mr. Young said.

He began the business 16 months ago and retailed his own product.

He said 40 head of registered and high-grade dairy animals will be offered for sale Saturday.

Grant Assured For Homes Plan For Alberni Aged

PORT ALBERNI—Alberni Valley Memorial Home Society was assured Tuesday night that a government grant would be available for construction of the district's first low-rent senior citizens' home project.

'Atomic Cannon' Backfires

NANAIMO—An "Atomic Cannon" which 19-year-old Daniel John-Ogilvie tossed in the direction of a young girl on Commercial Street Sunday, blew back in his own face in police court yesterday.

He admitted discharging a firecracker contrary to the city's anti-noise by-law.

Police said that a full pack of "Atomic Cannons" were taken from Ogilvie. Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts told Ogilvie to "grow up and act your age."

The first 100 feet of a 1,200-foot shaft below the tunnel level at Granduc Mines has been completed, according to Granby Consolidated, which owns a controlling interest in the copper project north of the Portland Canal. The shaft will be completed in early 1957.

Granby has 940,000 shares of Granduc and has options to buy 100,000 more at $2.75 each before the end of the year.

Granby has also paid $200,000 for 1,500,000 shares of Phoenix Copper Co. to provide working capital for renewed development of the once-famous property.

President, John Squire, M.L.A., said that while these funds may not be available until April, 1957, he understood money might be provided from a contingency fund if the society is ready to go ahead before then.

Immediate plans are to build three units each accommodating four couples, and four units each accommodating four single persons.

Cost of the seven units is estimated at $137,000.

ONE-THIRD COVER

The provincial government grant would cover one-third of the construction costs. Of the remainder, 10 per cent is to be raised locally and the rest through a mortgage loan from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The home is to be built at Tenth Avenue and Wallace Street.

The society now has $12,000 in its construction fund and land valued at $4,000. A further $1,800 has been pledged.

General Hospital here from severe burns to his hands and face received when he had to swim through a sea of fire after the 28-foot boat Tide-water exploded and sank off the west coast.

George Chamberland of Alberni, skipper of the vessel, escaped with minor burns. The two men were brought here by volunteer air-sea rescue forces Tuesday afternoon.

An engine failure just off shore forced the boat to drift.

McDonnell was forced to jump overboard for a short distance to avoid a sea of burning gasoline.

Contract Let For Dam

A $394,035 contract for diversion of Quinsam River into the Campbell Lake power storage area has been awarded by the B.C. Power Commission to Vancouver Pile Driving and Construction Co. Ltd. and Belmont Construction Co. Ltd.

Work includes dredging a channel between Upper Quinsam and Wokas Lakes, building a concrete storage dam with a crest length of 102 feet at the outlet of Wokas Lake, and construction of a 45-foot-high diversion dam on the Quinsam.

Commission officials said provision will be made for maintenance of minimum flow conditions for fisheries below Quinsam Falls.

Purpose of the diversion is to provide increased storage in Lower Campbell Lake for operation of the Ladore Falls power plant—due to be opened later this fall—and the John Hart dam.

Wired TV Reception Good

Wired television is bringing good channel 2 reception to Port Alberni televiewers and it is hoped that in time channels 12, 4 and 5 will be received over a line from the Cameron Lake area.

There is a potential of 1,200 homes to receive wired television in the southern part of town, Ivan Holloway, owner of Alberni Video Services Ltd. told The Daily Colonist.

Only other Vancouver Island communities receiving wired television are at Nitinat and Mesachie Lake.

The Port Alberni company now serves an area of about 100 city blocks with the channel 2 service. Without the wired service reception in the area is poor. More than 100 owners in the southern part of the city starting at Argyle Street to the southern city limits and Kingsway to 14th Avenue receive the service.

If the company pipes in other channels it expects to interest the other districts which already receive channel 2 clearly.

Wired television does away with the need for aerials.

Service costs at Port Alberni are $30 for connection and $3 per month. "We feel we can keep it at that price," Mr. Holloway said.

Publicity Man

DOUGLAS HORAN

Appointed publicity officer and executive assistant to the B.C. Centennial Committee yesterday was Vancouver news writer Douglas Horan, a former reporter for the Ottawa Citizen and publicity editor for the CBC in Vancouver.

Dairymen Seek Expert To Fight Milk Price

Dissatisfied dairy farmers on Vancouver Island and in the Fraser Valley have decided to hire an expert economist to "discredit" the current B.C. milk board formula for pricing milk.

They took the step after receiving their settlement cheques for September which gave them a price for top-grade milk considerably less than they received four years ago.

Meeting of delegates representing 90 per cent of the dairy farmers on the Island and lower mainland ordered the B.C. Federation of Agriculture to hire a recognized expert economist to make a study of dairy production cost factors in B.C. with a view to evolving a more "equitable formula."

They said the expert should be an "authority whose findings cannot help but be recognized by the B.C. milk board and, if satisfaction cannot be obtained from that body, then by the B.C. cabinet."

It was stated that operational costs have increased to such an extent that statistics issued by the federal government showed farmers' net income has decreased by 30 per cent since 1931.

Board Wanted

Storm Meets Parks Plan

Ald. J. Donald Smith found the weather stormy yesterday when he sought support for his idea of forming a metropolitan parks board.

Ald. Smith wanted the Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee to recommend to Victoria and Saanich councils that referendums be held in December "so the people can say whether or not they want a parks board for the two municipalities."

No decision was reached, because some of the committee members had other engagements and the meeting was cut short. But the committee will meet again Wednesday.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell and Coun. T. J. O'Neill provided the chief opposition.

Ald. Edgell maintained that there were already too many boards — "whether provincial, federal or civic they all cost the people money for administration."

alone." He doubted that a board "could do any more than we are doing."

Ald. Smith replied that "this committee couldn't do less." An appointed board of interested persons, he said, would be able to devote much time to planning of park facilities.

Coun. O'Neill held that Saanich shouldn't consider a joint parks board until it had developed its own parks more.

him. Victoria, he said, had no business developing parks in Saanich.

PORT ALBERNI—Alberni Valley Ski Club was granted permission by council to hold a tag day Dec. 1.

A letter from the organization stated funds are being sought for development, including a ski tow, at the Sproat Lake ski run.

Queen of Beggars

She Asks Help For Outcasts

A one-woman army marched into Victoria yesterday during her cross-Canada tour to raise $100,000 for the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova, founder of the Canadian branch and now its executive director, has spent the last 11 years working with the voluntary relief organization.

Under her direction, USC serves seven countries in Europe and Asia supplying what is most needed, especially for children.

SPECIAL PROJECTS

On each Canadian money-raising tour, Dr. Hirschmanova has also appealed for help in special projects.

This year she asks for volunteers to sew denim school uniforms and knit cardigans and pull-overs for refugee children.

"We do not care about the size or color of the sweaters just so long as they all have long sleeves. The children they will go to need long sleeves because it is very cold in the railway stations, ditches and mud huts where they live," Dr. Hirschmanova said.

The ardent worker, who rarely works less than 18 hours a day, hopes to raise $100,000 fund by Christmas.

After her trip across Canada, she will start on her fourth world tour to set up assistance programs.

During the 11 years since its formation, the USC in Canada has sent milk, barley and clothing to Korean children, given medical and educational assistance in rural areas of India, provided wheat for bread in earthquake-ravaged areas of Greece and set up a foster-parent scheme for 4,000 orphans in Europe and Asia.

Dr. Hirschmanova, a graduate of the Universities of Prague, her birthplace, and Sorbonne in Paris, holds a doctor's degree in philosophy and diplomas in social science and journalism.

Ottawa Civil Servant Cheats Death in Singapore

"I nearly shot the police corporal dead, two days after I met him. No one would have blamed me; it would have been self-defence. But — if I'd killed him, would I be alive today?"

In November Reader's Digest a man who is now a Government official in Ottawa tells why this question haunts him. His eerie, true life experience, "The Two-Edged Dagger," won the Reader's Digest $2,500 award and appears in the current issue. Get your November Reader's Digest today; 41 articles of lasting interest condensed to save your time.

"I love my work because I was a refugee myself and know what it is like to be hunted," she said.

OPPOSED HITLER

She openly opposed Hitler during the Second World War while working as a reporter and was forced to flee Czechoslovakia. She evaded the Gestapo for two years.

She was granted entrance to Canada in 1942 at the request of the London-exiled Czechoslovak Government and became a Canadian citizen in 1948.

Dr. Hirschmanova addressed the United Nations Association at Victoria College last night and will speak to a Rotary Club meeting today. Her next stop is Vancouver where she will speak to several organizations, appealing for funds for USC.

Valerie went to Medicine Institute Hospital, The University of California, San Diego, for the abortion. But the therapy games started about 10 days afterwards. Valerie had a "panic attack" on May 22, it is said by friends. "I began to lose control of my emotions for the first time," she says. The Orinides of Orient Lines son, Larry, said the few days of loss and recovery time.

'Lomas Get Big Chance In Grid Final Saturday

Vancouver Meritomas who meet Royal Roads Saturday afternoon at MacDonald Park for the B.C. junior Canadian football championship are proud of their victory over the Bombers.

The Bombers won the Vancouver title in 1956, then lost to the Meritomas in the final game. But with each season they grow a little stronger and they captured their championship last week when they defeated the Bombers in the final game.

Mantle, Berra Lead All-Star Balloting As Yankees, Tigers Each Place Three

By CARL LUNDQUIST

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mickey Mantle was a unanimous choice and Yogi Berra missed on only one ballot Wednesday on the annual United Press American League all-star team, which contained three world champion New York Yankees, three Detroit Tigers, and two men each from the Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox.

Mantle was the choice of all 100 writers who voted.

INFIELD TEAM-MATES

Shortstop Kuenn had a 342 average and 88 runs driven in while he led the league in hits.

The third Yankee to make the team was lefty pitcher Whitey Ford, who had 24 votes. The other pitcher, Billy Pierce of the White Sox with 15 votes, also is a southpaw.

CLOSE RACE

The closest race was at first base and it was the most interesting. Vernon missed out. Power of Kansas City's Dick Allen and Bill Spaworth of New York was a close race.

In all, 100 players were named for the team.

Easily Tops Roll

Durocher spent 16 years as a big league manager, winning three pennants and a world championship. He capped the 1954 season by leading the Yankees to a four-game sweep of the Dodgers in the world series.

Hike in Rural Water Rate
Will Produce 'Large Profit'

Greater Victoria Water District will make a "large profit" on operations in the rural areas, with approval yesterday by the B.C. Public Utilities Commission of a rate increase for rural customers. R. B. H. Sewell, secretary of the Langford Electric District Association, said last night.

The commission approved a 40 per cent increase, less five per cent of each ratepayer's total bill.

Woman Pedestrian
Struck by Car, DiesFour Others Injured
In Rash of Accidents

An elderly Victoria woman died in Royal Jubilee Hospital a few minutes before midnight last night as a result of multiple injuries suffered when she was knocked down in collision with a car near her 2916 Richmond Road home at 7:55 p.m.

Miss Amy McEwen, 78, was the 16th fatality in the Victoria traffic series for the year. She suffered multiple injuries, including a fractured skull, and died in hospital.

A coroner's inquest will be held on Monday.

Surgeons worked for four hours in an attempt to save her by drilling holes into the skull to relieve pressure on the brain.

Four other persons were injured in the collision, which occurred on a residential street.

The car, a 1955 Ford, was driven by a 21-year-old man, who was not injured.

Don Cockell Loses His Biggest Fight

SEVENOAKS, England (AP)—The pretty wife of Don Cockell, former British heavyweight boxing champion, said Wednesday night she is leaving him for a handsome ex-seaman.

Cockell, who lasted nine rounds with Rocky Marciano in San Francisco in 1955, and the sailor, Welshman-Taffy Clark, brawled over Mrs. Cockell's affections Tuesday night in a local saloon. Neither was injured.

Mrs. Cockell, 28, said she met Clark at a dance two months ago. "I've told Don I'm not going back to him," she informed reporters. "I've been counted out in my biggest fight," said Cockell. "I'm going to get a divorce." He said he will ask custody of their two small sons.

Wife Kept Faith

Amnesia Victim May Be Seaman Back from Grave

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—A frail little woman of 62, buoyed by prayer, said Wednesday an amnesia victim in a Boston, Mass., hospital may be her husband whom she has refused for 15 years to believe dead.

"We can't be sure it is him," Mrs. Rosalie Higgins said, "but it does, it does look like him. It could be."

Mrs. Higgins, wife of Frank J. Higgins, of Gavelston, chief engineer of an unarmed cargo ship torpedoed by a German submarine off Newfoundland Jan. 17, 1942, was looking at a picture of the amnesia victim, Charles A. Jameson. Forty men, including Higgins, were aboard the ill-fated S.S. Frances Salaman when it was sunk. The war department said there were no survivors.

But on Feb. 10, 1945, a man was left at the U.S. public health service hospital by an ambulance that left immediately. The ambulance was never traced.

The man, unconscious, was suffering from a crippling bone disease and his back was a mass of shrapnel wounds. A note in his clothing gave the name "Charles A. Jameson, 49; religion—Catholic; citizenship—American."

TV INTERVIEW
Jameson was interviewed on TV last week and a copy of the film was sent here and shown to Mrs. Higgins and her daughter, Mrs. Don. They noticed many likenesses.

"It could be... it could be," murmured Mrs. Higgins. She should know soon.

A fingerprint of Higgins, taken from an old merchant marine I-D card, has been sent to the Boston hospital for comparison with Jameson's print.

NATO Student Killed in Jet

WINNIPEG (UP)—The RCAF announced last night that a NATO student pilot was killed when his T-33 jet trainer crashed yesterday four miles south of its base at Portage la Prairie, Man.

An air force spokesman said a ground party recovered the body. The student, whose name was withheld, had been on a routine training flight.

For Laymen

Planning Forums Scheduled

Laymen's understanding of city development problems and solutions is the goal of the capital region branch of the Community Planners' Association of Canada, which has scheduled six monthly public forums conducted by experts in the planning field.

First forum of the series will be held at 8 p.m. tonight in the Business and Professional Women's Club, 904 Government. The speaker will be professor Ira M. Robinson of the UBC School of Community and Regional Planning.

Mr. Robinson's topic is urban renewal, the problem of replacing the "decay" in city "cores" with new commercial, industrial and multiple dwelling structures before a breakdown occurs in city life.

Mr. Robinson has considerable experience in slum clearance and other urban renewal problems in Chicago, and has added the knowledge of the situation in B.C. through university research.

In the second forum, Nov. 29, the public will have its first chance to hear D. Jackson Faustman, consulting traffic engineer from Sacramento, Calif., who recently finished a survey of the local traffic situation.

Discuss Training

Visitors at Royal Roads yesterday and Tuesday were members of the Joint Services University "Canservco" committee who attended an annual conference to discuss training of cadets under the Regular Officer Training Plan.

Acid Pollutes Water Supply

DURANGO, Colo. (UP)—A big tank truck plunged into the Animas River south of Durango late yesterday, dumping 3,000 gallons of sulphuric acid into the stream.

Radio stations broadcast warnings to people living along the river not to use its water for any purpose.

Durango police and sheriff's deputies began calling house-to-house along the river banks to repeat the warning. Deputies were sent five miles down river to collect water samples, which were then rushed to the San Juan Basin health unit for chemical tests to determine the extent of pollution.

The state patrol said the tank truck went off the side of a narrow bridge and into the river at the entrance to the Vanadium Corporation's Durango plant. The driver was not hurt.

The acid is used at the plant in milling uranium.

The Animas River is used partially for municipal water supply in that area.

William N. Garr, water pollution expert for the Colorado department of public health at Denver, said he could make only an "educated guess," but doubted that the acid would pose a danger for more than a few hours.

Calgary Firm To Build Bridge

Laundry Workers at Odds Over Wage Increase Offer

Some 30 employees of Economy Dries Ltd. and Standard Steam Laundry Ltd. have voted to accept a 20-cent-an-hour wage increase spread over a two-year contract. Present basic wage is 73 cents an hour.

Members of the same union, Laundry Workers' Union, Local 1, asked for a conciliation officer, W. G. Gauld, Canadian Labor Congress representative, said.

Laundry Ltd. have rejected the same offer.

The 85 employees of New Method Laundries and 35 employees of Standard Steam Laundry have asked for a conciliation officer, W. G. Gauld, Canadian Labor Congress representative, said.

Basic wage rate at the New Method plant is now 85 cents an hour, and at the Standard plant, 77 cents. The union hopes to raise the basic wage rate at both plants to $1.10 an hour, to bring it closer to Vancouver prevailing rates, Mr. Gauld said.
